Art Unit: 1742

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 20-48 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Causton '683 (Causton).

Causton discloses the invention substantially as claimed. Causton discloses a powder composition and a method of forming a compact comprising:

- providing an iron based powder (col. 3, lines 47-63);
- providing a graphite additive in an amount of up to 1% (col. 5, lines 63-68); and
- providing additional alloying elements including ferroalloys comprising alloying elements as claimed by Applicant (col. 3, line 63 to col. 4, line 29) to form a mixture;

compacting said mixture at pressure of 30-60 tons (col. 6, lines 3-5), and is silent as to temperature, which in the art is interpreted as pressing at room temperature.

Causton discloses wherein the iron based particles have particle size of less than 250 um, and provides examples of several particle size ranges that fall in the claimed size ranges as claimed by Applicant (col. 3, lines 47-63). The Examiner finds that the different particle size ranges which overlap and fall within Applicant's claimed range establish a prima facie case of obviousness, Applicant not showing any unexpected results occurring as a result of the selected claimed ranges in comparison to the selected claimed ranges of the cited prior art.

Furthermore, it is common knowledge to press at either room temperature or at an elevated temperature depending upon the desired green compact density and the selection of the initial starting alloy composition, and so as to select an elevated compacting temperature in the invention of Causton would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in order to improve compact density.
